Phone calls home have been made to find out the intended destinations of some students and to offer information and support, where needed. Alongside school staff, a home visit has been done and also visits to some students in alternative provision. A parent of a year 11 student also came into school to meet with us about the student's intended destination. This term, I also accompanied some year 10 students on a visit to Cheshire

College and have carried out group sessions with all year 10 form groups, helping the students to get to know the careers adviser, ready for year 11.

Any additional comments: Very helpful The talking was long and boring It helps you to think about the future It was fun It was not helpful. I still don't know where to go for college. They already told us about this in assembly and I still don't know what to do in the future like jobs/colleges/wages.
Summary: <ul style="list-style-type: none">● 93% of students found the session to be extremely, very or quite useful.● Having a member of school staff in the sessions was helpful, in terms of managing behaviour● Some student comments suggest a mix of expectations of the session and what it might offer them.
